

I'm worried that the protections that are in place will be weakened if we change the way they're enforced. I would support a new regulation style if it guarantees the same or better protections, but not if we lose any.

Thanks for reading my comment.

I believe net neutrality keeps the low barrier of getting a website going. Our technological future and future generations depend on this.